Thank you for consigning with Just Between Friends! We often get the question of “Where can I get hangers?” Here are some free and low cost ideas:

Free

- Dig in those closets and find hangers you aren't using. We really don't care what kind of hangers you use (tubular, wire, etc.). We do suggest child size hangers for 3T and under. Just make sure your garments stay on the hangers. If they look like they want to slip off, be sure and pin them with a safety pin to the hanger. Items that fall off the hangers may not be seen under the racks or can get dirty. Please skip the thick wooden hangers as garments tend to slip off of them.
- Ask your friends/family if they're willing to part with any. Most everyone has hangers laying around they aren't using – especially the ones from the dry cleaners.
- Post on your moms forums that you're looking for free hangers.
- Post under the “wanted” section of Craigslist (make sure you mention you want them for FREE!).
- Ask retailers if they've got any extras you could have (you'd be surprised!) – Target has a box under their registers with hangers. You can find free hangers at Old Navy, Kohl's, and Swansons Cleaners. Ask your local dry cleaner.
- Be sure and save those hangers when you purchase retail (remember to save them between sales so you have a ready supply for the next event).
- Keep in mind, you get to keep the hangers from the garments that you purchase at JBF. Recycle them for the next event!
- Grab some hangers at JBF breakdown. We encourage shoppers to recycle their hangers for you!

Low Cost Options:

- Dollar Tree, Dollar Depot, Walmart, Target and Big Lots all carry hangers – baby/child size hangers in the baby section tend to be cheaper.
- We urge you not to wait until the last minute to collect hangers. As the sale approaches, more and more consignors are on the lookout for hangers thus lessening local store supplies.

We hope you've found this helpful! If you come across a great resource, please share and we will add it to this document.

Happy Tagging!
